Are You Ready to See the Face of God?

A Radical New Documentary Says Yes!

IN THE 21ST CENTURY it has become possible for all individuals to achieve complete inner illumination through their own self-cultivation by using methods and information which have long been hidden but are now available to all. It's this inner illumination which represents the eternal quest for ultimate truth of both science and religion. The source of each human being's consciousness is this primordial freedom of complete enlightenment, and it's this awareness, which is eternally present, that represents the true union of the human body, soul and spirit.

The film, The Lost Secret of Immortality, directed and produced by Barclay Powers and Golden Elixir Productions represents a revolution in consciousness as well as the rediscovery of the most ancient truths of both science and religion. These truths are coupled with the premise that the complete evolution of mind and body is actually the ultimate goal of individual freedom, which is the origin of Western science, Chinese medicine and Indian spirituality.

Science has actually rediscovered the source of itself, the legendary Philosopher's Stone; whether the starting point of the body is called the Golden Embryo in Chinese alchemy, the Kundalini in Indian yoga or the Original Face in Zen Buddhism, true freedom has always been the Elixir of Immortality. The viewer will discover that the possibility of attaining the Rainbow Body — the dissolution of the body at death — represents the completion stage of real meditation and the complete evolution of the human mind/body continuum.

It's possible for all human beings to achieve complete enlightenment through the variety of methods described in this film, which include sexual yoga, breathing practices, and many other techniques that seek to activate and harness the original pre-birth enlightened energy of the body.

This film is the first scientific explanation of the goal of meditation, yoga, tai chi and qi gong and describes physiological transmutation as opposed to a mere psychological understanding. The ultimate achievement — the Rainbow Body — represents the complete physical transmutation of the human body into pure energy.

The Original Face is the starting point of the human body, which one sees when one's body is fully activated. It's this experience that enabled the Buddha to awaken completely under the Bodhi Tree. To see one's Original Face is the goal of real Zen and results in the realization of Tao. The original mind of each human being is ultimate freedom, the goal of life is to fully evolve and reunite the original mind with the mind of Tao, which represents complete inner illumination.

When it becomes understood that it's possible for each human being to permanently transcend birth and death as well as time and space, humanity will recognize its own true nature and become free.
